

Stephen Long's Imaginary Theatre Company Presents:

Imagine I Am Smiling

(A Play About Trains)

“RELAX. EAT YOUR APPLE.”

The Imaginary Theatre Company is a brand new company making its debut at this year's Edinburgh Fringe with its play, "Imagine I am Smiling". It's about three women who are waiting for a delayed train.

Yet, what starts as an all too familiar occurrence gradually becomes an exploration of the nature of public transport, how not to talk to strangers, and what it would take to cheer you up.

The problem is, the 14:48 service to Dovey Junction is delayed by a lot longer than just a few minutes. It might be here by some point this evening. Possibly tomorrow. Um. No one's really sure. But they do apologise for the delay to this service and any inconvenience caused.

And that's reassuring.

In the meantime, April, May, and June will just have to sit it out.
Why not wait with them?

www.imaginarytheatre.co.uk

"Imagine I Am Smiling" will be showing at 14:45-15:30 on 3rd - 27th August (except 14th), 2006.
Smirnoff Baby Belly 2 (Caves, South Niddry Street, Edinburgh)

Preview performances (3rd and 4th August) - £5
Weekday performances (Mon - Thurs) - £8 (£7 conc.)
Weekend performances (Fri - Sun) - £9 (£8 conc.)

Venue box office: 0870 745 3083 / www.underbelly.co.uk
Fringe box office: 0131 226 0000 / www.edfringe.com

For more information contact Stephen Long at 07745681230 / imaginarytheatre@hotmail.co.uk
Or contact the Underbelly press office at 0870 745 3078 / press@underbelly.co.uk